

In the financial services industry, change is constant and inevitable.

And it can be costly.

- ▶ Reduce cost
- ▶ Drive performance
- ▶ Gain and keep compliance

Workstream's process modelling, automation and management solutions tackle the challenges of change head on, helping managers in the financial sector be ready for anything – without breaking the bank.

Designed by financial service professionals, Workstream's solutions enable organisations to deal rapidly and cost effectively with pressing business drivers such as:

- new regulatory requirements;
- mounting internal governance responsibilities;
- the drive to launch new customer facing products in record time; and
- the need to make processes more efficient and reduce costs.

Helping Deliver Better Business Processes - Fast

Relieve your employees of the drudgery and paper chase involved in complex manual tasks, such as new client adoption, customer support queries, or payment authorisations

Make those processes more controllable, visible, repeatable, and auditable – to meet the demands of regulatory compliance and reduce the risks to your business of costly errors.

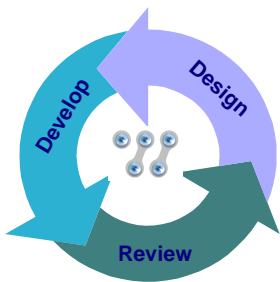

Cut costs and make your business more efficient and agile. Know where to focus your process improvement efforts to get the greatest rewards. And create processes and systems that can respond quickly to changing customer demands and market conditions without the need for labour-intense workarounds.

Workstream Automation, through its powerful combination of expertise, services and technologies, can help you deliver these business benefits.

The Workstream Advantage

Workstream's solutions are specifically designed to help organisations like yours get more control over their processes and react more effectively to changing needs. They seamlessly support the full process management lifecycle, from analysis of needs, development and deployment of supporting systems, through to providing management information to allow further process improvement.

Workstream is delivered by a team with significant expertise in business process management and automation in client-side organisations. We understand your needs because we've been on the front line ourselves. That's why Workstream comes backed by a range of services and support that can help your organisation tackle regulation and compliance, risk management and improved efficiency more quickly and easily.

Workstream In Your Organisation

We offer three ways to take advantage of Workstream:

- Our flagship product, Workstream Executive, is designed for organisations and consultancies looking for an in-house development environment.
- Our range of packaged applications developed in Workstream, for processes such as Credit Approval, Credit Administration and Personal Loan Processing for financial institutions, Expense Claims and Vendor Invoicing applications are designed to handle common processes. They can quickly be tailored to meet your organisation's specific needs and deployed rapidly, thanks to Workstream's powerful modelling and application capabilities.
- Our consultancy service helps you capture your system requirements and deploy solutions in your business using Workstream.

Benefits of Workstream

Workstream has been designed to:

- help you respond to demands from regulators for compliance information by enabling processes to become controlled, repeatable and easily audited
- help you implement and enforce industry best practice within your organisation
- automatically provide management information to support control of business processes and provide a foundation for further improvement
- put design and review tools directly into the hands of business process owners, improving interaction between business users and IT, and ensuring deployed systems meet business requirements fully
- support rapid application development, allowing you to change your business to deliver cost savings and process improvements more quickly than ever before
- make the most of investment in existing systems by using industry standards to allow fast and simple integration with existing data sources and processes
- minimise upfront investment in tools and implementation costs
- work with industry standard technologies - including open source software - to allow solutions to be rolled out cost-effectively

Contact

To learn more about how Workstream can help your organisation become more efficient and effective, and to arrange a demonstration, please contact: Kishwer Aziz on +44 (0)207 745 7142 or by email at kishwer.aziz@workstreamautomation.com.